A famous Scotch preacher insisted that the Sunday school would "destroy family religion," and even John Wesley, in 1784, wrote in this dubious vein: "Perhaps God may have a deeper end thereto than men are aware of. Who knows but that some of these schools may become nurseries for Christians?" In our own country the opposition was streauous and bitter. As late as 1820 a Connecticut pastor, discovering a small class huddled in the gailery, chased its daring members out of church with his cane, declaring that they were "imps of Sattan, doing the devifa work."

After this General Eazane's reputation went gradually under a cloud. In 1873 he was tried for treason. GENERAL BAZAINE.

When the French rushed bilithely to war against the Germans in 1876 General Bazaine was one of the most popular military commanders.

He had a unique career. He had fought in Algiers, the Crimes and lially and had conquered Mexico at the head of a French griny. He were the cross of the Legion of Honor for bravery and was reputed to enjoy standing on the field of battle amid a rain of bullets and reading the day's reports in an indifferent manner.

The Franco-Prussian war had not proceeded beyond the first few blunders when General Bazaine was made commander of the army of the Ribine. It was his duty to crush the advancing enemy and to proceed to Berlin by the nearest route, sending back cathedrals, deeds to provinces and other spoils as he captured them. He prepared for this advance by takins up a very strong position and awaiting the German army.
